CATA Disclosure Form

Explanatory notes:

- There is no prescribed, required form for a disclosure under the Whistleblower Regime. nbn has provided this document only as guidance and assistance if you want to speak up about any potential misconduct or improper state of affairs or circumstances at nbn. You can speak up by filling out this form and giving it to an Eligible Recipient (see the Whistleblower Policy for further information on how to make a disclosure and to whom a disclosure can be made).
- Capitalised terms are defined in the CATA Glossary of Terms available on nbn's website.
- Not all disclosures of misconduct or wrongdoing will be disclosures under the Whistleblower Regime. If you are unsure as to whether your complaint constitutes a Qualifying Disclosure, please review the background information provided in the Whistleblower Policy and/or contact a WPO in accordance with the list of WPOs set out in that policy. Remember that you can safely seek independent legal advice as to your position, and how to make a disclosure. Please note that the nbn Legal Group represents nbn, so will not be able to provide independent legal advice to you.
- Please note that if you make a Qualifying Disclosure:
 - unless otherwise required by law/regulator guidance, nbn will handle your disclosure in accordance with the Whistleblower Policy.
 - you will be subject to certain obligations, but will also be afforded certain protections, under the Whistleblower Regime, which are summarised below.
 - the protections include, 1) your identity (or any information likely to lead to your identification) will be kept confidential, unless that information is disclosed with your consent or as permitted under the Whistleblower Regime, 2) you will be protected from retaliation or detriment and 3) you will be entitled to certain immunities.
- As this form contemplates, you may make a disclosure anonymously, though this may make it more difficult for nbn to investigate your disclosure and to protect you against detrimental conduct.
- You should not discuss the details of your disclosure with anyone who does not need to know. Discussions with these people will not be covered by the protections in the Whistleblower Regime.
- DO NOT investigate any matter yourself. Doing so may hinder or compromise a potential investigation.
